Mr. Parkman has already distinguished binnel in the field of authorship His "Conspiracy of Poutise," is one of the most valuable sinc readable contributions to American History. Tais, his first attempt at novel writing, proves him to be a worthy rivel of Cooper, Paulding and Stoma. The story is fall of locincent, the plot well contributions. The story is fall of locincent, the plot well contributed and executed, and the characters life-like. We found aurestees constrained by the interest of the book to read it through at a sitting, and we rose from the pleasure with the loope that the author might soon entertain us with another work of equal attraction.

Western Africa, and Prospects. By the Rev J. Leighton Wilson, Eighteen Years a Missionary in Africa, and now one of the Secretaries of the Presbyterian Board of Foreian Missiona. With numerous Engavings. Brow. Muslin, 64 25.
Br. Wilson is probably better acquainted than any other man with Western Africa and its invahituats. During a residence of simust eventy years, he repeatedly visited an portions of the coest mastered the principa lunguage of the natures, composed grammars and dark invahituats and published books in them. He may be not receive the principal lunguage of the natures, composed grammars and dark invahidation than the composed some of the most vaugable contributions that have been received wade to the sciences of ethinology and publication. He has a careful and shrewd observer, and cresents the result of the observations in an accelent style. His book is a valuable addition to our knowledge of a country which is rapidly rising in importance.
